NON-DISCLOSURE AGREEMENT

One-way · CNC milling quotation · Laws of India

This Non-Disclosure Agreement (the Agreement) is made on the date of the last signature on the signing page (the Effective Date).

BETWEEN

Avenue Ticketing India Private Limited (also written as Avenue Ticketing India Pvt. Ltd.), a company incorporated under the Companies Act, 2013, CIN U62099TN2026PTC196799, with its registered office at No.44/72, Flat No. 203, Tower A, Evk Sampath Salai, Vepry, Chennai - 600007 (the Disclosing Party),

AND

Vishesh Engineering Works, a proprietorship, GSTIN 04ASQPK4941C1ZU, with its principal place of business at Plot no. 986, Industrial area, Phase-2, Chandigarh (the Receiving Party).

The Disclosing Party and the Receiving Party are each a Party and together the Parties.

Background

A. The Disclosing Party owns or is allowed to disclose designs and technical information for parts that may be made by CNC milling.

B. The Disclosing Party is willing to disclose that information so the Receiving Party can assess the work and prepare a quotation, and can machine the parts for the Disclosing Party if a purchase order is later issued.

C. The Receiving Party agrees to keep that information confidential and to use it only for that purpose.

The Parties agree as follows.

In consideration of the Disclosing Party making Confidential Information available for the Purpose, the Receiving Party gives the undertakings in this Agreement.

1. Purpose

1.1 Purpose means only the following:

(a) assessing whether the Receiving Party can machine the parts, and preparing a written quotation for the Disclosing Party; and

(b) if, and only if, the Disclosing Party later issues a written purchase order to the Receiving Party, machining those parts solely for the Disclosing Party under that purchase order, including the inspection records that order requires.

1.2 Nothing in this Agreement obliges the Disclosing Party to request a quotation, issue a purchase order, or buy any part. A quotation is not an order.

2. Confidential Information

2.1 Confidential Information means the non-public information that the Disclosing Party, or a person acting for it, discloses to the Receiving Party on or after the Effective Date, in writing, by electronic file, by sample, or orally, and that falls into any of these categories:

(a) drawings and revisions;

(b) CAD and CAM files, including STEP, IGES, STL, Parasolid, native CAD files, and toolpaths;

(c) dimensions, tolerances, geometric tolerances, surface finish, material, heat treatment, and coating;

(d) bills of materials, assembly relationships, and interface dimensions;

(e) samples, prototypes, photographs, and videos of the parts or assemblies;

(f) inspection reports, first-article data, and fixture or gauge designs made from the items above;

(g) the intended function of a part, where that function is disclosed by the Disclosing Party and is not a generic machining note;

(h) quantities, target dates, target prices, and other commercial terms that the Disclosing Party shares for the quotation; and

(i) the fact that the Disclosing Party is seeking machining of these particular parts.

2.2 Information in clauses 2.1(a) to 2.1(g) and in clause 2.1(i) is Confidential Information whether or not it is marked. Information in clause 2.1(h) is Confidential Information if it is marked confidential, or if a reasonable supplier would understand that it was shared in confidence.

2.3 The Disclosing Party may list the files in Schedule A, or in a design transmittal that refers to this Agreement. That transmittal forms part of this Agreement. A list is evidence of what was disclosed. Information can still be Confidential Information if it was disclosed and falls within clause 2.1, even if a file name was left off the list.

2.4 An oral disclosure is Confidential Information if it falls within clause 2.1 and the Disclosing Party confirms it in writing within thirty (30) days. The confirmation may be by email.

3. What is not Confidential Information

3.1 Confidential Information does not include information that the Receiving Party can show, by contemporaneous written records:

(a) is, or becomes, public other than by a breach of this Agreement;

(b) was already lawfully in the Receiving Party's possession, without a duty of confidence, before the Disclosing Party disclosed it;

(c) is independently developed by the Receiving Party without use of, and without reference to, the Confidential Information; or

(d) is received from a third party who had the right to disclose it and who was not under a duty of confidence in respect of it.

3.2 The Receiving Party bears the burden of showing that an exclusion applies. A combination of features is Confidential Information even if individual features are public, unless the combination itself is public.

4. Use and non-disclosure

4.1 The Receiving Party shall use the Confidential Information only for the Purpose, and shall not disclose it to any third party except as clause 5 allows.

4.2 The Receiving Party shall not:

(a) machine, copy, or reproduce the parts, or any substantial part of their geometry, for itself or for any person other than the Disclosing Party;

(b) reverse engineer, measure, scan, or decompile a drawing, model, or sample, except to the extent reasonably required for the Purpose;

(c) apply for, or assist anyone else to apply for, a patent, design registration, copyright, or other intellectual property right in the Confidential Information;

(d) show the Confidential Information, or a part made from it, to any other customer, and shall not use it in a portfolio, brochure, website, social-media post, advertisement, or trade show;

(e) send the files or a sample to another machining shop, programmer, inspector, or agent, except a subcontractor approved under clause 5.2; or

(f) put the Confidential Information into a public artificial-intelligence tool, a public translation tool, or any service that uses customer content to train a model.

4.3 This Agreement does not stop the Receiving Party from carrying on a machining business for other customers. It does not stop the Receiving Party from using skill, or information, that it can show under clause 3. It does stop the Receiving Party from using the Disclosing Party's Confidential Information outside the Purpose.

4.4 The Receiving Party shall not remove a confidentiality marking, a copyright notice, or a proprietary legend from any copy it is allowed to make.

5. People who may see the information

5.1 The Receiving Party may disclose Confidential Information only to its employees, directors, and individual contractors who need it for the Purpose, who are told that it is confidential, and who are bound in writing to keep it confidential on terms no less strict than this Agreement. The Receiving Party is responsible for any breach by those persons. If a design transmittal names the individuals who may open specified files, the Receiving Party shall not allow any other person to open those files without the Disclosing Party's prior written consent.

5.2 The Receiving Party shall not disclose Confidential Information to a subcontractor, a group company, a sister concern, or any other company without the Disclosing Party's prior written consent. Consent may be refused. If consent is given, the Receiving Party shall first obtain a written undertaking from that person on terms no less strict than this Agreement, and shall remain liable for that person's breach.

5.3 The Receiving Party shall not disclose Confidential Information to a person outside India without the Disclosing Party's prior written consent. Sending it through the Receiving Party's existing email or file storage is not, by itself, such a disclosure, if only the persons allowed under clause 5 can open it.

6. Care of the files

6.1 The Receiving Party shall protect the Confidential Information with at least the care it uses for its own confidential material, and in any event with reasonable care. It shall keep copies only as needed for the Purpose.

6.2 The Receiving Party shall not send Confidential Information through a public link, an open group chat, or any channel that persons other than those in clause 5.1 can access. A shared link, if used, must be limited to named people and must expire.

6.3 The Receiving Party shall notify the Disclosing Party within seventy-two (72) hours of becoming aware of any loss, unauthorised access, or unauthorised disclosure. The notice shall say what happened, what information was affected, and what the Receiving Party is doing about it. This notice does not excuse the breach.

7. Ownership and no licence

7.1 The Confidential Information, and all intellectual property in it, remains the property of the Disclosing Party or its licensors. This Agreement does not assign any right, title, or interest. No licence is granted except the limited permission to use the Confidential Information for the Purpose. That permission ends when this Agreement requires the information to be returned or destroyed.

7.2 A suggestion about how to hold, tool, or machine a part does not give the Receiving Party any right in the Disclosing Party's design. The Receiving Party keeps its general machining methods that do not use the Confidential Information.

7.3 Toolpaths, programs, and inspection sheets made from the Confidential Information may be used only for the Purpose, and are themselves Confidential Information.

8. Disclosure required by law

8.1 The Receiving Party may disclose Confidential Information if a law, a court, or a government authority requires it. It shall disclose only what is required. Where the law allows, it shall give the Disclosing Party prompt written notice before disclosing, so that the Disclosing Party can seek a protective order. The Disclosing Party shall bear the reasonable cost of that application. The Receiving Party shall reasonably cooperate.

9. Return and destruction

9.1 The Receiving Party shall return or permanently destroy all Confidential Information, and every copy, toolpath, and photograph of it, within fifteen (15) days after the earliest of:

(a) a written request from the Disclosing Party;

(b) the Disclosing Party telling the Receiving Party that the quotation will not be taken up;

(c) ninety (90) days after the Receiving Party submits its quotation, if the Disclosing Party has not issued a purchase order;

(d) if a purchase order was issued, completion of that order, including any rework the order requires; or

(e) ninety (90) days after the Disclosing Party first discloses the Confidential Information, if the Receiving Party has not submitted a quotation.

9.2 Within those fifteen (15) days the Receiving Party shall send a certificate, signed by an authorised signatory, that it has returned or destroyed the Confidential Information.

9.3 The Receiving Party may keep one copy only to the extent a law requires it to keep that record. That copy remains Confidential Information. The Receiving Party shall not use it for any other job.

9.4 Samples and prototypes remain the property of the Disclosing Party and shall be returned. They shall not be measured or copied for any other customer.

10. No warranty

10.1 The Disclosing Party gives the Confidential Information as it is. It makes no warranty that the information is accurate, complete, or fit for manufacture. The Receiving Party is responsible for its own quotation and for its own machining.

10.2 The Disclosing Party is not liable to the Receiving Party for the Receiving Party's use of the Confidential Information, except to the extent a loss is caused by the Disclosing Party's fraud or wilful misconduct.

11. How long this lasts

11.1 This Agreement starts on the Effective Date. It covers Confidential Information disclosed during the two (2) years after the Effective Date. Either Party may end further disclosures by written notice. Ending further disclosures does not end clauses that this clause says will survive.

11.2 The duties in clauses 4, 5, 6, 7, and 9 last for five (5) years from the date the relevant Confidential Information was disclosed. If that information is a trade secret, the duties last for as long as it remains a trade secret, where that period is longer.

11.3 Clauses 7, 10, 12, 13, 14, and 15 survive, as do any duty that clause 11.2 keeps alive.

12. Remedies

12.1 The Receiving Party agrees that a breach may cause harm that money alone cannot cure. The Disclosing Party may seek an interim and a final injunction, and specific performance, from a court of competent jurisdiction, without limiting any other remedy.

12.2 The Disclosing Party may recover the loss caused by a breach, under section 73 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. This Agreement does not name a fixed sum. If the Parties later name one, section 74 of that Act applies, and the sum must be a genuine pre-estimate of loss.

12.3 The Receiving Party shall indemnify the Disclosing Party against the loss, cost, and reasonable legal fees that the Disclosing Party actually incurs because of a breach of this Agreement by the Receiving Party, or by any person to whom the Receiving Party gave the Confidential Information.

13. Notices

13.1 Notices under this Agreement shall be in writing and shall be sent by email to the address on the signing page, and also by hand or by a recorded courier to the address on the first page, or to any replacement address that a Party notifies.

13.2 A notice sent by email is received on the date it is sent, if no delivery-failure message is received. A notice sent by hand or courier is received on the date of delivery.

14. General

14.1 The Parties are independent contractors. This Agreement does not create a partnership, a joint venture, or an agency.

14.2 The Receiving Party shall not assign this Agreement, or any right under it, without the Disclosing Party's prior written consent. The Disclosing Party may assign this Agreement to a company that controls it, that it controls, or that is under common control with it, on written notice, provided the assignee is bound by this Agreement.

14.3 A change to this Agreement is valid only if it is in writing and signed by both Parties. A failure or delay in enforcing a right is not a waiver. A waiver must be in writing.

14.4 If a court holds any part of this Agreement unenforceable, the rest remains in force. The Parties shall replace that part with a valid term that comes as close as possible to their original intent.

14.5 This Agreement is the entire agreement between the Parties about its subject. It replaces any earlier discussion about confidentiality of this quotation. It does not replace a later written purchase order on commercial terms such as price, quantity, and delivery. If a purchase order conflicts with this Agreement on confidentiality or intellectual property, this Agreement prevails.

14.6 This Agreement may be signed in counterparts. A counterpart may be signed in wet ink, or by an electronic signature that meets section 5 of the Information Technology Act, 2000. A contract formed by an electronic record is valid under section 10A of that Act. A scan of a signed counterpart is a copy of that counterpart. Together the counterparts are one agreement.

14.7 Each Party shall bear its own costs. The Disclosing Party shall bear the stamp duty on this Agreement.

14.8 Headings are for convenience only. The word including means including without limitation. A reference to a law includes that law as amended.

14.9 No person other than the Parties has any right to enforce this Agreement.

15. Law and courts

15.1 This Agreement is governed by the laws of India.

15.2 If a dispute arises, the Parties shall first try to resolve it by written discussion for fifteen (15) days after one Party gives notice of the dispute.

15.3 This Agreement is made at SAS Nagar, Mohali, India, where the Disclosing Party has its registered office. Subject to clause 15.2, the courts at that city have exclusive jurisdiction. The Parties submit to those courts.
